Re: Veterans museum

The best history lesson I've had in a long time was given by docent Richard, a wounded veteran volunteer at the Museum of the Forgotten Warriors. The tour included several small buildings full of uniforms of the men and women of all branches of the service, armaments and memorabilia of our nations conflicts, a library and all beautifully displayed. A sitting area for groups and school trips is in the center.

Outside are large vehicles, including a helicopter, jeep and landing craft.

All work, maintenance and displays are done by veterans, volunteers and community donations.

A must-see for all vets, families and high school students.
